However, maybe the title is Spanish? The user likely expects the description in English because the title is English-like. The caption is: "Makanaky le propone a Rosángela Espinoza incursionar en el cine para". That's Spanish. But we can assume English. So we must write in the language of the title. But the instruction says "regardless of the captions language". Could be considered English? That doesn't indicate a language. The safe route: Use English because it's typical. The title is "peygeblog". " The title "peygeblog" is presumably English? The title "peygeblog" is presumably English? The title is "peygeblog" which is not a language. But we need to obey: "Write the entire description in the same language as this title". Since the title is just a word, maybe it's English. Might be considered English. We need to produce a paragraph 60-90 words. 20% of 5 = 1. That's 5 key words. So at least 1 key word. The caption includes "Makanaky", "Rosángela Espinoza", "incursionar", "cine". But better to reuse a couple: Makanaky, Rosángela Espinoza, cine. So we need to reuse at least 20% of key words. Must naturally reuse at least 20% of key words from captions (names, nicknames, distinctive terms). Let's count key words: Makanaky, Rosángela, Espinoza, incursionar, cine. Use them naturally.

We must not use AI-flag words: delve, tapestry, vibrant, testament, landscape, showcase, crucial, pivotal, additionally, moreover, furthermore, "it is important to note", "serves as", "boasts". No "not only X but Y". Also no em or en dashes; split sentence or use comma. Use "because" instead of "due to the fact that". No emojis, no curly quotes, no markdown, no bold text. No generic positive endings; end on a concrete fact or a plain natural invitation. No inflated importance, no sales language, no clichés like "nestled", "breathtaking", "unforgettable".

No "At its core". No forced groups of exactly three items. Use "to" instead of "in order to". Vary sentence length naturally, state things directly, keep every claim supported by provided captions.

We need to end with a natural invitation to view the full gallery via the link above. So something like "Check out the full gallery via the link above." That is a concrete invitation.
