Goofing Off Senior Peter Crozier and junior Edmund Phillips watch as juniors Brook Porter and Matt Cosman hold up fellow high school students. Although the juniors were playing their pranks with the sixth graders, the leaders find some time to goof off and joke about sixth grade behavior. Senior Edwin Burke commented, "My cabin was like 99/2/01. They were all back crashing each other." Photo by Cynthia Bellows.

I Pledge Allegiance Seniors Cynthia Bellows, Peter Cutler, Ashley Mccullough, Claire Skoniki, and Caroline Wachler with juniors Brook Porter, Matt Cosman and Michelle Kaine raise the flag for the pledge of allegiance. Raising the flag was a responsibility of the leaders, along with teaching the classes. Junior Melissa H commented, "Teaching the class was fun when you were in your own." Cough It Up Kid Junior Matt Cosman demonstrates the Heimlich maneuver on a sixth grader while trying to remove his "buttoned" pen. Students were required to fill out booklets while at OES and leaders were constantly reminding students to behave in their cars, "Some of us had trying to teach them some manners. Getting to know the students was another responsibility for the leaders and trying to understand them was even a bigger challenge. Sixth graders have different ideas of what's important, such as popularity, looks, etc. which caused a lot of tension between the students." stated junior Kim Hromoski. Photo by Cynthia Bellows.

Saying Good-bye Juniors Michelle Kaine and Brook Porter, with seniors Cynthia Bellows, Caroline Wachler, and Ashley Mccullough, visit with the students at the end of OES. This group of students went to Mt. Evans with Ralston and Coal Creek Elementary schools during the first week of November. When asked what the funniest thing was, junior Brook Porter and senior Ashley Mccullough stated unanimously replied," When the boys' dorm had bumping wars, the top floor was slamming the bunk beds and jumping up and down, while the bottom floor was hanging on the ceiling. We thought the floor was going to fall through." Photo by P. Cutler.
